Andrews Will Dry Up Country Or Quit Service

Task of Drying up The Country Effectively Is Not Completed By November Andrews Will Quit—Organic Squad To Survey Breweries.

Washington, March 8.—L. C. Andrews, assistant secretary of treasury in charge of prohibition, began today his final offensive to dry up the country effectively by November 1.

If the task is not completed by that time, if there are then still noticeable wet spots that cannot be plugged, Andrews said he would quit the service.

"Last November I said that if progress in enforcement had not been obtained within one year I would quit," Andrews declared.

"I stand by that statement."

Andrews said the government is now in a position to check materially operations of the rum trust.

Diversion of industrial alcohol, the chief source of bootleg liquor supply, will be stopped by the new flying alcohol squadron, Andrews predicted.

"Smuggling has been reduced," he said. "Eventually, with refinements of processes and strengthening of the coastwise blockade, it will be stopped."

"The end of diversions and smuggling will leave to the moonshiners and the home distillers the production of the only source of supply for intoxicants in the country."

Andrews announced that he would organize a squad to make a survey of the breweries of the United States in an effort to suppress the production of alcoholic beer. Another squad will be formed to administer details of the law pertaining to the manufacture and distribution of wines.

Large quantities of high power beer are being produced in Pennsylvania, New York, Chicago and other population centers, according to information obtained by treasury officials.

Home producers of alcoholic wine have nothing to fear from the federal government, it was learned. The wine makers have been placed in the same class with "home use" cider manufacturers.

The Rev. George W. Grinton, D. D., pastor of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, Tarrytown, since April of last year, will not return to that church after conference convenes in April. He will assume the superintendency of the Five Points Mission in New York City.

Dr. Grinton read to the official board of the church at a special meeting an official communication he received last week from the secretary of the board of managers of the mission, announcing that he had been unanimously elected superintendent and the board of managers was hoping for a favorable reply.

Dr. Grinton told the board that he had not accepted the offer but he signified his intention to do so. The mission to which Dr. Grinton will go in April offers a large field for service. A day school is operated in connection with the mission, which has 800 pupils. In addition there are industrial classes and a "shoe club," which supplies shoes to the poor.

The Sunday school also has approximately 800 pupils. There is an Italian pastor who takes charge of the Italian religious work, a field agent on the staff and seven or eight helpers and an assistant religious pastor. Several matters came up before Judge Rosch in special term of the Supreme court held at the court house Saturday afternoon. The March term of the court was held by Judge Rosch in the absence of Judge Hasbrouck who is in Nassau.

In the matter of Bertha W. DeLong versus Luther DeLong, an application for alimony and counsel fee, an order was signed granting $3 a week alimony and $50 counsel fee. R. V. Ellsworth, for Brinnier & Cahfield appeared for plaintiff.

An order was signed confirming the report of Referee Joseph M. Fowler appointed in a partition action brought by S. Louise Minnerly versus William S. Mygrant. Benjamin Rowe and Van Etten & Cook appeared for plaintiff and Frank W. Brooks for defendant.

Contempt Case Adjudged. In the case of May Hendricks against Abner Hendricks, a motion was made to show cause why defendant should not be punished for contempt of court was adjourned until court. M. O. Auchmoody appeared for plaintiff and A. B. Brevoort for defendant.

An order appointing E. E. Oughlree referee to sell in a foreclosure action brought by Thomas Goldworthy against Hannah Williams and others was signed. Fred Stephan, Jr., for plaintiff.

Gill Separation Case. Application for counsel fee and alimony in a separation action brought by Matilda Gill against Seth C. Gill was made to the court. Judge J. M. Fowler appeared for the plaintiff. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for the defendant. Plaintiff and defendant were married in October, 1925, and separated on December 28, 1925.

In opposing the motion Mr. Flanagan stated that the case presented several facts which the court should know before deciding the motion. Plaintiff and defendant met in New York and two years prior to the marriage the plaintiff sued the defendant for $100,000 for breach of promise. One day the defendant had desired to communicate with the plaintiff and he waited outside her home in Brooklyn until she returned from work. He attempted to converse with her and she refused, requesting him to walk down the street a distance. When some distance from her home and near an officer she had struck the defendant Gill and he was arrested by the officer for disorderly conduct. The case was later dismissed.

Can't Afford to Pay Bills. Gill, employed as manager by David Gill, Jr., builders' supply firm in this city, at present receives but $30 a week. Mr. Flanagan stated that since the ultimate marriage of the couple they had come to Kingston to reside and they had been living in a rented home. When the two separated plaintiff continued to reside in the house and sought to have the defendant pay the rent together with other bills which had reached a proportion of over $200 in two months. Defendant could not afford to pay the bills and continue to pay the rent of $40 a month for the house which he was not now occupying but which his wife continued to live in. He stated that the defendant was financially unable to pay the bills demanded of him.

After hearing the facts in the case Judge Rosch granted plaintiff $7.50 a week alimony and $75 counsel fee. The temporary alimony will be paid until such time as the case is disposed of and unless the case is tried within six months the alimony will be terminated at that time.

League Merely Marking Time

French Cabinet Crisis Prevents Settlement of Enlargement of League Council—Germany Demands That She Be the Only Nation Admitted.

Geneva, March 8.—Facing the most severe test of its career, the League of Nations is today marking time, pending settlement of the French cabinet crisis.

Dispute over the proposed enlargement of the League Council can not be settled until France has a government and delegates empowered to make compromises and concessions.

The meeting of the league this afternoon is expected to be purely formal, and as brief as possible.

Germany declines to enter the league until the council question is settled, and demands that she be the only new nation admitted to the council.

France insists upon Spain, and perhaps one other nation being given a seat, Spain threatens to quit the league entirely if her request for a seat on the council is rejected.

Sweden is bitterly opposing expansion of the council.

Latin-American countries are reported ready to follow Spain if she quits the league.

Great Britain is anxious to act as a mediator, but she can not mediate until the French delegates have the support of a government.

Pending the formation of a new French government it is anticipated that the league will merely mark time, realizing that its future potency is threatened.

Even the Locarno Treaties may go by the boards if the league fails to settle its crisis. Under the provisions of these treaties Germany was to become a member of the league.

Conferences yesterday between the representatives of France, Great Britain and Germany came to a climax when Stresemann is reported to have intimated that Germany feels she is being tricked by the plans to enlarge the League Council. He insisted that at Locarno he was promised that Germany would alone be admitted to the council.

M. Briand and Sir Austen Chamberlain responded to this with the statement that the admission of Spain to the council had been under consideration for several years.

Another minor rumour is promulgated by the demand of China for a temporary seat on the council. Japan is said to be ready to back this claim.

Smith Joins in Ship Canal Fight

Colonel Greene Will Represent Governor Smith at Washington Tuesday at Hearing of All-American Ship Canal.

Albany, N. Y., March 8.—Governor Smith today joined in the fight for an All-American Ship Canal from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic through New York State.

The Governor directed Colonel Frederick S. Greene, State Superintendent of Public Works, to represent him tomorrow at Washington at the hearing before the army board of engineers for rivers and harbors.

There seems to be every reason to believe that the governor will support the All-American Ship Canal and I have yet to hear a good reason against it," Governor Smith declared. "This looks like an excellent opportunity to solve one of our big problems in transportation."

The army engineers have reported adversely on the proposed All-American Ship Canal on the grounds that estimated maintenance costs of $30,000,000 a year would not be warranted by the estimates of $22,000,000 freight savings each year.

Colonel Greene said today the maintenance estimates of the army engineers were too high, and that he would challenge the figures at the hearing in Washington tomorrow.

"Flu" Epidemic At Syracuse

Syracuse, N. Y., March 8.—Eastwood School authorities ordered the junior high school closed this afternoon when it was found nearly 50 per cent of the pupils are at home suffering from the "flu."

RAIDERS STAGE TWO

New York, March 8.—Invasion Times Square at an hour when it was thronged with people on their way to work, five armed bandits overpowered a night watchman at the stage entrance to the George M. Cohan Theatre, today, slipped over a safe in the office on the balcony and escaped with receipts estimated at between $4,000 and $5,000.

In a spectacular raid on January 10, the bandits had staged two previous raids, the first of which was a raid on the Broadway Theatre, in which they had secured $10,000 in receipts and made off with $3,000.

Talk to London Over Radio Phone

Forty American Newspaper Men Talk For Four Hours With Colleagues in London—Regular Communication Not Far Off.

New York, March 8.—"Hello, Central, give me London."

This, as an ordinary request in the not distant future, was eagerly discussed by people of New York today following establishment of the first two-way radio telephone communication across the Atlantic in history last night.

For four hours, forty American newspaper men, in the American Telephone & Telegraph Company's experimental station here, chatted individually and informally with many of their colleagues in London.

The transmission was as clear, or clearer, than ordinary conversations in the city.

The occasion for the tests was a demonstration of progress in international telephony by the A. T. & T., the Radio Corporation of America and British General Post Office.

Officials of the telephone company today said it was impossible to tell when trans-Atlantic wireless telephone service can be established on a commercial basis, but hinted that the day when such communication will be almost as common as regular long distance service is not far off.

Messages from America to England travelled a different route than those from England to America. A voice spoken into the microphone here was relayed seventy miles by wire to the Rocky Point, L. I., Radio Corporation Station, which sent it 3,300 miles over the air to Wroughston, England, when it was sent more than 100 miles by wire to London.

From London messages were sent by wire to Rugby, and thence 2,500 miles to Houlton, Me., by radio, and then carried by wire 200 miles to New York.

Inventor Listens In

Salem, Mass., March 8.—Ralph C. Browne, known as "The man who bottled up the German U-boats," listened in at his home here on the wireless telephone tests between New York and London.

Conversations, he said, came through as clear as the regular service between Salem and Boston.

Browne, who came into fame in the World War by inventing a device for firing off mines in the North Sea, driving off the German U-boats, picked up the 3,400 mile telephone talks across the Atlantic on his three tube radio set with an outside aerial.

Attached to the set is a device of Browne's invention, which he calls "interchangeable coils."

By relaying the wireless telephone conversations over his house telephone wire, Browne gave his Salem and Boston friends an opportunity to hear the test.

In connection with the trans-oceanic telephone conversations, which came on the anniversary of the birth of the telephone, it was recalled here that the first news dispatch ever transmitted over a telephone was sent to a Boston newspaper from a lecture hall here fifty years ago by Henry M. Batchelder, then a reporter and now a banker.

Batchelder talked to Boston over a phone line which had been used in a demonstration of the inventor, Alexander Graham Bell.

HAGEN EASILY WINS FROM BOBBY JONES

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 8.—Walter Hagen's amazingly easy victory over Bobby Jones, by 12 up and 11 to play, in a 72-hole match, leaves no doubt as to the identity of the American match-play king of the links at this time. Jones's followers, however, maintained today that Bobby was far off form.

Bobby played better golf yesterday, getting a 73 for the first eighteen holes, but Hagen was almost unbeatable with a 24-25-69. The professional champion's card showed a 71, a 70 and a 69 for a sensational total of 210 for 54 holes while Jones had 77-74-73-224.

MRS. AL KING STRUCK BY FORD TRUCK SATURDAY

State's Charity Bill Increases

Annual Report of State Board of Charities Shows Annual Expenditure of $250,000,000—Plan for Adequate Safeguard.

Albany, N. Y., March 8.—The Empire State's annual charity bill amounts to $250,000,000 according to the annual report of the State Board of Charities to be submitted to the Legislature tonight. Of the sum $100,000,000 was spent by the state on charitable institutions and activities under the supervision of the board.

In the report the board expresses a plan for adequate safeguards for this "golden stream of generosity" that it may not be diverted from the channels for which it is intended.

Two of the features of the report are the decrease in the number of able-bodied inmates of almshouses, which has necessitated the employment of workers to man their farms and the gradual passing of the orphan asylum.

During the last fiscal year ending June 30, 1925, the number of inmates of the almshouses increased, but the inmates now are mostly the aged and infirm so that hired help must be provided to maintain the institutions. The old orphan asylum system is giving way to boards of child welfare which cared for 30,000 children last year according to the report.

The report shows an increase in the expenditures for Indian poor and characterizes the present plan of caring for Indians on reservations as ineffective and suggests placing of both laws and law enforcement for the Indians on the same basis as that for the whites.

The board approved the extension or incorporation of 23 institutions and licenses for 51 dispensaries during the fiscal year.

Strikers Plan to Close All Mills

Intimate Mediation Offer Will Be Rejected by Mill Owners—Refers For Distinct Strikers—No Action Made.

Pasadena, N. J., March 8.—Mass picketing before all the textile mills affected by the strike order, was undertaken today by striking mill workers in a drive to have "every worker out and all mills closed" by the end of the week.

Hopes for settlement raised by the strikers' acceptance of the mediation offer of Rabbi Stephen Wise and three associated New Yorkers were given a set-back when Charles F. H. Johnson, vice-president of the Botany Worsted Mills, who hitherto has acted as spokesman for the owners, intimated that the offer would be rejected by his side.

Johnson called Albert Weisbord, youthful strike leader, a communist and said he would not negotiate with the United Front Committee or anyone representing it. Weisbord is organizer of the committee.

Meanwhile strike leaders were conferring on means for relieving the hundreds of destitute mill-workers warring for higher wages.

Approximately $1,000 a day has been coming in from sources sympathetic with the strike and several hundred families are now receiving aid from this fund.

Although warrants for the arrest of Police Chief Richard Zober and two patrolmen for alleged attacks on strikers and non-strikers have been out for several days, arrests have not been made as constables here refuse to act.

Manager Lazarus To Give Benefit

Legion Plans for Children's Care

Wants Orphans of World War Veterans Cared For in Community Where They Live Cooperating With Other Organizations.

The Child Welfare Division of the American Legion, designed to care for the orphans of veterans of the World War, is now functioning in a remarkably successful fashion, according to a statement issued to the commanders of the 900 posts of the Legion in this state by Col. Harry C. Wilder, state commander. It was for this and other welfare work of the Legion that the recent endowment campaign for $5,000,000 was made. Toward this goal more than $700,000 was raised in New York state and a number of communities are still working on their quotas. The entire sum will soon be in the hands of the national committee for endowment investment.

"I am glad to state," announces Colonel Wilder, "that the organization period in this state has progressed in a remarkably successful fashion and county child welfare chairmen have been appointed in the great majority of the counties. It is our aim that every effort be made to place children either in good foster homes or to rehabilitate the home in which they are living, before sending them to billets. You are urged in all cases to endeavor to arrange, if possible, the care of the children in the community in which they live. We will find as we go along more and more ways of living up to our pledge of a home for every homeless child of a veteran."

County chairmen for child welfare work are also instructed to cooperate closely with the Red Cross and other child welfare agencies in order that the best home be found for each child. The state child welfare committee consists of C. W. A. Cannon, Richmond Hill, chairman; Dr. F. E. Fronczak, board of health of Buffalo; Mrs. D. J. Donovan of Rochester, and Reginald Wood of Albany.

Old French Chateaux of Historic Interest

To say these French names over rapidly suggests college days and the struggle with declensions, but Guyon, Gallion and Gaillard are not in any grammar, they are three interesting Normandy chateaux, whose ruins go back to the days of warring plumes, shining armor and prancing steeds.

If you can ignore for a moment the scratchings of tourists on the old walls and the waste paper of kodak cartons they have left behind them, it is not hard to people, in fancy, the Twelfth century life that went on there, when Richard the Lion Hearted invaded the land.

The view from the tower at Guyon should not be missed and reminds one of the panorama from the Eiffel tower. Gaillard, which in King Richard's day was "the key to all Normandy," will also give to those who scramble up the precipitous ruins, a wonderful outlook. At Gallion, the American will remember that it not only once housed Philippe-Auguste, Louis XII, the Medicis and Napoleon, but also Benjamin Franklin.

Oh, Romeo!

He was a very shy young man, and although Ernyntrude had presented him with innumerable opportunities for declaring his love in practical fashion, he could never summon up sufficient courage to take advantage of them.

They were sitting as usual one evening—she on the sofa, he on a chair with the usual half-hour intervals between remarks, when the climax was reached.

"Isn't it funny," she said, "that the length of a man's arm is the same as the circumference of a girl's waist?" "Is that so?" said he, mildly interested. "What do you say if we see a piece of string and see if it's right?"

A new challenge to mother's leadership! The most receptive age... the most plastic years in which to cultivate good habits of food and sleep and play... the golden period of possibilities for developing keen minds and sound bodies for after years—this is what the time of the "tuneabout," between 2 and 6, is called.

Do you as a mother attach too much importance to getting the children to eat a large amount of food?

And give too little attention to the growth foods that children must have during the growth years?

MANY mothers do not know that the heavy meals prepared for grownups should rarely take the place of the simple fare that growing children need.

And some mothers attach too much importance to quantity of food and give too little attention to certain foods proved to be the right foods during the all-important growth years.

Indeed, overeating of certain kinds of foods which do not furnish proper growth and health-promoting elements during the years of most rapid growth, is more common, specialists say, than actual underfeeding.

The one element in food most needed during the growing years is the material that builds the tissue that is forming continuously in growing children. This indispensable tissue-former is called protein, after the Greek word "proteos" and means "to hold first place."

Mothers should know which foods contain this growth principal in helpful amounts in order to plan child meals intelligently during the growth years.

Quick Mother's Oats and milk, one cup of each, furnishes 25% or nearly one-fourth of this principal in food—protein—most needed for child growth.

Then the vitamins and minerals that are so essential to growing children—all are present because these breakfast oats, made by careful millers, contain the full food value and all the wholesome, nutritious and valuable parts of the natural whole grain.

And busy mothers appreciate their convenience—ready in 3 to 5 minutes—almost before the children are down to the table.

High-Sound, 2 Names

It seems to be the practice for lead, to come or climb to adopt titles in disguise. The old Venetians used to say, "See Venice and die." and Rome always styled itself the Eternal City. Boston calls itself the American City, and the English town—the Fish of the City, while London has not drunk from calling itself the Metropolis of the World. It is a most potent factor in the life of a city, and in the field with the entire of Western Europe, but it is in London that both use it and believe in the truth. Edinburgh styles itself the City of the World, and Glasgow calls itself the City of the World. It is the second city of the world. It is the city that is who has it own style has seen no marvel. Edinburgh calls itself the City of the World, and Glasgow calls itself the City of the World.

Color Invades the Lingerie Field Including Silk Knit Varieties.

Women who travel about and have laundry problems because of living in hotels are inclined greatly toward knitted silk underwear for the very obvious reason that it can be kept fresh without being ironed. Now that eye appeal and style details have been considered in making knitted underthings, any lurking prejudice against it has been eliminated, for the new all silk of rayon underthings are as colorful and as feminine as crepes de chine, satins or any of the lingerie materials, besides which they are more or less figure molding, an asset these days, more especially nights, for it is still desirable to wear as few garments and as supple ones as possible, and be decently covered.

The very active fashion of employing the colors for underthings must be mentioned. Of course, not strictly new, but new things really have not been done before. Knitted underthings are now bound and embroidered or appliqued in a contrasting color, as for instance, pink and blue, yellow and white, and even coral with black. Peach and pink shades are the ones most frequently chosen and those who are in the know now there is no call ever for blue lingerie, although touches of blue appear on flesh and peach. Nile and other light greens are liked, so is orchid which is very effective when combined with a deeper shade. The embroidery in one attractive set consisting of well spaced dots in a darker shade. One can, of course, obtain pajamas, nightgowns and almost all varieties of underthings now in knitted effects either in plain or drop stitch material.

With the exception of the many, many smart sweaters, all of which seem to be the pull-on type, knitted underthings do not seem as impressive as last season.

Since Paton and others took to topping their tailored skirts with jerseys naturally the sports world and women who live out of doors have manifested a renewed interest in sweaters. Several of the smartest have horizontal stripes in strongly contrasting colors. A type one needs to be very slender in order to wear with anything like the desired effect. Such jumpers, for that is after all what they are frequently, have high necks, and of course, always long sleeves.

Simply Had to Wait

Entering her sitting room one evening, a woman saw one of her cat, tails ablaze. It having come in contact with a gas jet.

She called to the cook for a pail of water, but the latter did not arrive on the scene until the man of the house had rushed in, torn down the curtain and stamped out the flame.

"Why didn't you hurry?" they asked the cook.

"Hurry?" she repeated. "Wasn't I busy?" as fast as I could? I had hot water in the pail to throw out, and then get some cold water. You didn't want me to come in and throw hot water on the fire and make it worse, did you?"

KINGSTON, N. Y., MARCH 8, 1926.

Though they were many-sided men, Washington and Lincoln are not honored by being summoned as witnesses on all sides of every question. Obviously the modern politicians who do it are not thinking of paying tribute but only of furthering their own schemes.

When "Samantha" went to the Astor House in New York she sent word down to Mrs. Astor not to go to any trouble on her account, that just to "take pot luck" would be perfectly acceptable, and that she would like to help "do the dishes" afterward. The death at eighty years of Marietta Holly, author of the "Samantha" series, recalls the sort of humor our ancestors laughed at heartily, but might have difficulty in getting even a smile from this sophisticated generation.

A bill has been introduced in the British Parliament to prohibit the unrestricted sale to foreigners of valuable works of art owned in England, and especially the demolition and export of historic buildings to be erected on foreign soil. But it is said that no objection has been raised to the removal of a stone from the Cathedral at Canterbury, and another from the church of Shakespear at Stratford-on-Avon, to be built into the fabric of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City in token of enduring common sentiment and tradition between mother and daughter nations.

Canon Pritchard of Rochester, N. Y., is quoted as saying to those who deplore the young woman who smokes:

It is perfectly futile for us older people to pretend that the standards in force in our own comparatively simple generation can possibly be the standards that are useful or suitable to those who are younger.

There are some standards that must be maintained if civilization is to survive, but as regards smoking, fashions in dress and other such minor matters, Canon Pritchard is right enough. At any rate it is just as well to realize that protest from "old fogies" is as it has ever been, a waste of breath.

CLAIMED BY BOTH SIDES.

Abraham Lincoln is quoted on both sides of the prohibition controversy, or quoted on one side and claimed on the other. He was claimed the other day by the Rev. Edward Cummings of Boston, who occupies the pulpit of the late Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale. Mr. Cummings said he wished he had it in his power to put into words "the mingled shame and sorrow and contempt and indignation" with which the Rev. Dr. Hale "would characterize the blue-blooded, bootlegging Bolsheviks of Boston"—and further: "I think Dr. Hale would have something to say about national law and order. He was, as most of you know, an earnest champion of prohibition. He believed, as Lincoln believed, that here was another great movement for emancipating men, women and children from the most degrading forms of human slavery."

Probably some among the "blue-blooded, bootlegging Bolsheviks of Boston" would like to remind Mr. Cummings that, though there were temperance societies urging total abstinence or temperate indulgence, prohibition was not enough of an issue to interest politicians in Lincoln's time, but that nevertheless an utterance is attributed to him, during his debates with Douglas, which conveys an entirely different impression of what "Lincoln believed" in this connection. He has often been quoted as saying at that time:

Prohibition will work great injury to the cause of temperance. It is a species of temperance within itself, for it goes beyond the bounds of reason in that it attempts to control a man's appetite by legislation and makes a crime out of things that are not crimes. A prohibition law would strike a blow at the very principles upon which our government was founded.

Presumably this quotation can be verified, for otherwise one would expect those employing it to be exposed as well as refuted. But its advertised verification by competent authorities would not prevent many men and women from assuming and believing that, inasmuch as Lincoln was a great and good man, he must have been a prohibitionist or have and that he would now, as a matter of course, be filled with "mingled shame and sorrow and contempt and indignation" in the presence of the spectacle of the "blue-blooded, bootlegging Bolsheviks of Boston"—and of other places too numerous to mention.

MEETING THE PATIENT HALF-WAY.

A British physician of high standing, Sir Arbuthnot Lane after a visit to the United States and Canada, has been talking very plainly to his professional brethren over there. He says that in America the doctor and his patient meet on an equal ground, the patient telling all his symptoms, and the physician explaining just why he thinks these symptoms are due to certain causes, and also just why they cannot be, or are not likely to be, due to anything else.

In other words the physician on this side of the water actually takes his patient into his confidence in every way. That in America the day has come when the doctor is a man of mystery, and a patient would hesitate to ask the doctor the diagnosis of his complaint.

It is so different in Britain where the physician stands aloof from the patient. He is as well equipped as any physician in the world, but this very aloof attitude makes the patient stand in awe of him, and there is not the same straightforward chance for the patient to unburden himself completely.

How far is a physician going to get in treating a patient for some disability when the patient will only answer the questions asked him, and gets little or no opportunity of telling everything? A rapid heart, an irritable stomach, a congested gall bladder or other condition, may be due to some emotional disturbance in the patient's life, and the doctor's diagnosis and treatment is going to be of no avail until this is cleared away.

A few months ago Dr. Mayo, America's great surgeon, made the statement that a doctor was simply out of date who did not take his patient into his confidence, tell him frankly what he thought was the trouble, and outline to the patient in a general way his line of treatment. In this way he got the cooperation of the patient because the patient saw the "reasonableness" of it.

The fact that it is a Britisher who is telling the British physicians that our way out here is the better way, may get this idea into the profession there, and the patients and doctors themselves will be greatly benefited thereby.

THE ST. JAMES LADIES' AID SOCIETY.

Over $3,000 has been raised during the year by the activities of the different circles, $2,000 of which has been expended for repairs to the church building, refitting chairs, dining room, purchasing tables and chairs, new carpet for the church parlor and other minor necessities. The society numbers 175 members. Two have passed away during the year.

The meeting closed with a social hour and refreshments, enjoyed by all present.

"Duke's Laws," the English code for Government of New York. Adopted March 8, 1609.

The dreams of freedom under British rule in New York were never realized by the Dutch. They found that a change of matters did not increase their liberty or happiness.

Fresh names and laws did not secure fresh liberties. New Amsterdam was changed to New York, and Orange to Albany, but these changes only commemorated the titles of the conqueror. It was nearly twenty years before that conqueror allowed, even for a brief period, to the people of New York that faint degree of representative government which they had enjoyed when the tri-colored ensign of Holland was hoisted from the flag-staff of Fort Amsterdam to be replaced by the red cross of St. George.

New Netherland exchanged Stuyvesant, the Dutch West India Company, and a republican sovereignty for Nicholas, a royal proprietor, and a hereditary king. The province was not represented in Parliament; nor could the voice of the people reach the chapel of St. Stephen at Westminster as readily as it had reached the chambers of the Binnenhof at the Hague.

Governor Nicolls required the Dutch inhabitants, who numbered about two-thirds of the population of New Netherland, to take the oath of allegiance that made them subjects of the British crown. At first they offered some opposition, fearing they must renounce wholly their connection with the fatherland, but Nicolls assured them that every article of the capitulation should be strictly observed, and they yielded. The chief citizens hastened to take the oath; Stuyvesant and the two Dutch clergymen led the way; Beckman, the three Bayards, Van Rensselaer and others followed.

Nicolls repaired the ancient fort and would have quartered his soldiers on the people, but they agreed to pay a weekly sum toward their support. Trade had nearly ceased and Nicolls was obliged to impose new taxes.

The king having authorized the duke to make laws for the colony, the latter empowered Governor Nicolls and his council to do so without the concurrence of representatives of the people.

Nicolls was a scholar, his mind was active, and his knowledge considerable. He spent the leisure moments of his first winter in New York in planning a code of laws for his wide domain that should be in unison with the wishes of the duke and not displeasing to the people. He framed his constitution and laws upon the principle of a perfect despotism, there was only the pretense of consultation with representatives of the people in the construction of these laws.

A meeting of thirty-four delegates was held at Hempstead, on the call of Governor Nicolls. There were two representatives from each of the English and Dutch towns on Long Island and two in Westchester. Some of them had been members of Stuyvesant's last General Assembly of New Netherland the previous year.

The Governor stated in his call that the meeting was to "settle good and known laws" in their government for the future and receive their "best advice and information."

The Governor then laid before the delegates a body of general laws, which had been chiefly compiled from statutes then in force in New England, with more toleration in matters of religion.

The delegates were not satisfied with many of them and several amendments were made, but when they asked to be allowed to choose their own magistrates, the Governor exhibited instructions from the Duke of York wherein the choice of "officers of justice was solely to be made by the governor."

The delegates found that they were not popular representatives to make laws, but were mere agents to accept there already prepared for them, and had merely changed the despotism of Stuyvesant for English despotism.

The New York code adopted at that meeting, March 8, 1609, was arranged in alphabetical order of subjects and published, and is generally known as the Duke's Laws. It was the first code of English law in New York.

It was drawn up by Matthew Nicolls, secretary of the colony, from the laws of other British provinces, the common law of England and the former Roman-Dutch law of New Netherland.

There was no mention in the code of a popular assembly; all officials were to be appointed by the governor; all taxes are laid and all laws were imposed by him, thus investing him with absolute authority.

On June 12 following, the English municipal government was formally established.

TRYING THINGS FOR TORIES.

Boston, March 8, 1776.—The Boston Tories are finally convinced this morning that their great good friend and protector, General William Howe, has decided to vacate the town with the British army. Firm in their faith in Howe and his army, they have never until now believed it possible that the patriot army could drive him away, leaving them at the mercy of Washington's army and their patriot neighbors, to care for themselves as best they can. But now they know that Howe is certainly going.

During the siege since the Battle of Lexington and Concord, Boston has been a city of refuge for the Tories of the surrounding towns. It has been the one place where the "disaffected" of New England could find safe and sure retreat from their former neighbors who are now their bitter enemies. General Howe virtually drove the majority of Boston's patriot people into the country. He never actually rounded them up and marched them out, but he contrived to make the conditions of their staying in Boston so burdensome and humiliating that all who could do so went away and have been living on the charity of patriot families in Hampshire county.

The Tories here know this only too well, as they also know that no mercy remains for them in patriot hearts. Howe's decision to go leaves them no choice except to go with him or remain here and endure the contempt and worse of the victorious Continental soldiers and the liberty people. Howe has decided that he must save his army at all costs, whatever may become of the Tories. But he cannot utterly abandon the King's American friends here lest he thereby destroy much of the friendliness toward the King throughout all the colonies. Therefore, as a matter of expediency probably, rather than with any great humane motive, he will allow the Tories to go with him, and some 1,100 are clamoring for the opportunity. Whole families will go—men, women and children—with as many of their household goods as they are allowed to carry away.

The bewilderment of these people this morning is pathetic. Rather than meet their offended countrymen, they are preparing to brave the dangers of March weather on the New England coast in crowded ships, and follow the "fortunes of a disgraced army."

KINGSTON ENGAGES BURNS AGENCY TO EXPOSE BOGUS STOCK SALESMEN

Bogus stock salesmen are having a hard time in Kingston since the Chamber of Commerce has engaged the Burns Detective Agency to expose frauds in that city. Poughkeepsie is considering similar action.

The depredations of fakirs who prey especially upon people who hold good sound securities and persuade them to part with them in exchange for stocks which are little better than stage money, have arrested the attention of thoughtful people everywhere. Millions of dollars are lost each year in this manner.

It is an easy matter to offer high prices for conservative securities if payment is to be made in stock which has little if any value. This is a favorite approach and a well dressed, smooth spoken salesman often succeeds in tempting people to let go of stocks and bonds which pay interest and dividends regularly and which can readily be converted into cash, and to take in exchange something which has no value.

We mention these facts in these columns because thousands of our customers hold securities in Central Hudson companies and these securities are eagerly accepted by bogus stock promoters.

It is always a safe plan to consult one's banker when approached with a proposition to exchange or pledge one's good conservative securities for stock in any "get rich quick" scheme. In fact, it is a good plan to consult one's banker with regard to any investment.

We can not advise concerning investments, of course, that is the banker's function. As for Central Hudson securities we do urge people to hold on to them. If you must sell, call at any office of the company and every facility will be afforded for you to realize on your investment.

"DO IT FOR NEWBURGH"

The Newburgh News, speaking editorially of a recent meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, says: "Anything that is needful or desirable can be accomplished for Newburgh, if we but make up our minds to accomplish it and work loyally and energetically enough."

This was by way of spurring the citizens of that favored city to think and act in terms of the common good. The News, by the way, published daily in parallel columns information under two heads. One is "For Newburgh's Good." The other is "For Good of the Region."

Indicating that, while the home town comes first, it also has a vital interest in what is for the good of people as soon as machinery can be installed.

TO RECEIVE MEDAL FOR SAVING A LIFE

Beacon, "not too close and not too far" in its proximity to New York, is about to undertake a publicity campaign through its Board of Trade. Stimulated by what James G. Meyer told them of how advertising has benefited Florida, the members of the board have decided to act. Mr. Meyer spent some time in Florida and became convinced that the secret lies in publicity.

Beacon is near the gateway to the Central Hudson Region. It is advantageously located to benefit from the overflow from the metropolis. The rule of procedure seems to be to visualize, energize, organize, advertise and realize. Beacon has taken the first three steps in the program.

ELECTRICITY ON THE FARM

A total of 126 miles of rural lines were built by the Central Hudson System in 1925, bringing the total up to 538 and a fraction. In 1924 about 100 miles of rural lines were built.

This tells a story of the widening sphere of usefulness for our companies. It means that the benefits of electricity rapidly are being brought to the farm and the farm home.

The first and most common use of electricity is for lighting. In the home, in the barn, in the farm workshop, the dairy, or the poultry house, there can be light and night is turned to day. The farm house is usually, soon equipped with labor saving appliances. They save the housekeeper in the country as they do the housekeeper in the city.

In farm work, also, electricity stands ready to serve. Utility men depend upon the farmer's judgment and experience as to how generally electricity can be applied, and in many places they are meeting with farm organizations and endeavoring to work out methods for the utilization of electric power on the farm.

In the country the average number of customers is four to the mile. A hundred miles of line means bringing electric service to four hundred farms. An electrified farm is never an abandoned farm.

MORE CONCRETE HIGHWAYS FOR EAST SHORE

Ten miles of concrete highway from Hopewell Junction to South Millbrook and from Washington Hollow to Pine Plains will be built during the next two seasons, according to action taken by Dutchess County officials recently. This is territory served by Central Hudson Companies, some of which has been acquired within recent months.

Another Bridge Across the Hudson

Active discussion, many meetings, newspaper support, a favorable attitude of state authorities, indicate the possibility of another vehicular bridge across the Hudson in the vicinity of Catskill. When the pot of public opinion begins to boil things begin to happen. Without an active public opinion nothing happens. Bills have been introduced in the Legislature and it is predicted that engineers will be ready to report on March 1, 1927.

"Pigs Is Taxes" in China

"Pigs is pigs," but according to Chinese military officials they are more than that—they are a good source of revenue. Hence when the new regime took control of Shanghai and looked around for possible sources of income it decided to impose a tax on every pig that enters Shanghai.

The city magistrates gave orders that the headquarters and model club of the Shanghai pig dealers be closed and sent a posse of Chinese police to see that the orders were carried out until the new tax was paid. The levy proved unpopular from the start and led to a hurried demand for this tax by Chinese buyers.

City Forest Pays Its Way

Salvage From Old Trees Meets Reforesting Costs—Many Cities and Villages Are Beginning to Put Idle Land to Profitable Use.

Albany, March 8.—The Conservation Commission is receiving inquiries from all parts of the state in reference to the planting of municipal forests by counties, cities, towns, villages and school districts that are considering the use of idle land to grow lumber and wood to meet their local needs. Many cities in Europe have such forests that are more than one hundred years old and are steady sources of revenue. In Switzerland the city of Zurich regularly employs one man for every 10 acres of its forest, and in the winter and times of industrial depression employs more. What Europe has been doing successfully and profitably for two centuries, American cities are just beginning to do, and are using for that purpose land not suited to raising agricultural crops of which there are large areas in nearly every county in the state.

Two-thirds of the cities in New York state have started, in one form or another, municipal forests which already have planted more than 1,000 acres. Some of these forests in addition to the young plantations contain mature trees that may be utilized for lumber and wood. In the Albany city forest, which contains over 600 acres a considerable portion of the land is covered with mature pitch pine a recent survey showed $50,000 worth of lumber for pitch besides 2,000 cords of wood.

The city of Fitchburg, Mass. has a municipal forest of 105 acres and is using the receipts from the sale of poles and wood to pay the cost of reforestation to give a solid stand of white pine.

The Fitchburg municipal forest was started in December 1911, the city government setting aside four tracts of land already owned by the city and located in different sections, a total of 105 acres. The lots all had some growth on them, two of them having a fair start of white pine and the other two being of hard wood and chestnut growth.

On one of the lots where there is a chestnut growth the city this winter is making a clean cut as the chestnut is dead and hopes to get enough revenue to pay all costs of reforestation over a considerable portion next spring. In a few years by doing a little each year it is hoped that the 105 acres may be entirely white pine. One lot of 10 acres at present all hard wood and nearly mature will be cut and put into pine. The city is planting all white pine believing that the blister rust can be controlled.

There has been a total of approximately $6,000 expended to date on these lots. The revenue has been approximately $4,000 with about $1,000 more to be received from poles and wood at present unsold. The four lots comprising the municipal forest are very rocky land; absolutely unfit for any other purpose and located far enough from the center of population to easily allow for the maturity of the crop. Regarding the work on the city forest, thus far, Guy A. Hubbard, city forester, writes: "We have been fortunate in our supply of pine transplants which have been furnished by the State Department without cost. This is a good thing and encourages reforestation for many who have looked over our lots who have devoted a portion of their own land to this purpose. It is a fine sight after a lot has been planted for five or six years to see the amount of growth each year—from a foot to two and a half feet in a single year. This comes after they are fairly well established."

Mr. Miller in spite of his four score years and ten, is hale and hearty doing all of his own work upon his place, cutting the firewood, etc. He is a marvel to his many friends and bids fair to reach the century mark.

THE KINGSTON FIRE DEPARTMENT

Answered thirty-four alarms in January. In most cases the damage was small but the danger period is not yet past. Using gas stoves, oil stoves and various substitutes for hard coal greatly increases the fire hazard and we urge all good citizens to be on their guard. Call the fire department promptly on discovery of a fire. Five minutes' delay may mean the loss of thousands of dollars. And last but not least—KEEP YOUR PROPERTY PROPERLY INSURED.

INEQUALITY OF FEDERAL AID IN HIGHWAYS.

The time has come to call a halt to the "fifty-fifty" system of federal aid to the states. In the opinion of Senator James W. Wadsworth, in National Business Magazine. Starting with a modest appropriation of less than half a million dollars in 1914, this "fifty-fifty" business has grown until today its income on the federal treasury has reached the enormous sum of $118,000,000 annually, which, of course, requires substantial annual outlay from the states, so that the total cost of the system to the tax-paying public is well over $200,000,000 a year.

Its ramifications have taken many different directions from road building to teaching mothers how to care for their infants.

An interesting feature of the system in the manner in which some states are called upon to pay the great proportion of this outlay, from which they receive only a minor share in return. A few instances will serve to illustrate the point.

The state of Nevada pays into the federal treasury $750,000 annually and receives in subsidies $1,845,845, or 242 per cent of the amount in contributed to the maintenance of the federal government. North Dakota pays in $1,282,828 and takes out $1,487,559. South Dakota pays $1,251,218 and gets in return $2,034,122.

Contrast this with the case of Pennsylvania which pays in $269,000,000 to the federal treasury and receives in return $1,539,000, or about 5.7 per cent.

New Jersey pays in $112,000,000 and takes out $628,000, or 5.58 per cent. Connecticut fares still worse. It pays in $27,000,000 and gets back $201,000, or 0.74 per cent.

MORGAN HILL.
Morgan Hill, March 8.—The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Reschner and family in the sudden death by accident last week of her husband, George Reschner. Mrs. Thelma Wills of Brooklyn spent the week end with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Wadsworth, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wadsworth.

The school children make a complaint about the snow as they are still enjoying the coasting during recess and after school hours.

Owing to the weather and the Lenten season everything is very quiet here except for an occasional small social gathering of neighbors.

Spring Dinner at Trinity Church.
The annual spring dinner under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of Trinity M. E. Church, will be held Friday, March 12, from 5 to 8 o'clock. Mrs. J. L. Jones catering. Following is the menu the ladies are planning to serve: Bouillabaisse and potatoes, chicken potatoes, scalloped potatoes, green peas, cabbage salad, jelly, celery, brown and white bread, ice cream, sponge cake, coffee and tea. There will be on sale delicious home made candy.

U. S. PROFESSOR DECLARES FRANCE WILL BE GERMANIZED

Dr. R. M. True of the University of Pennsylvania. Says Teutons Will Spread Out to Get Land.

Philadelphia. — France eventually must become Germanized in fact, if not in theory, in the opinion of Dr.
R. M. True, professor of botany, University of Pennsylvania.

This conclusion is based upon a study of the history of agriculture and populations from the earliest records to the present day, a subject of which he has made a special study.
"I can't see what is going to save France from German agricultural penetration," Doctor True said. "History, as I interpret it, revolves about the problem of food supply, and that is primarily a land question. Politics is the institution through which land affects nations through their rulers."
The Germans always have been active populators. From the earliest times they have been boiling over their boundaries. Julius Caesar caught them raiding the Gauls. Not many years ago the German tribes again raided the Gauls through Belgium.

"The population push is just as great in Germany today as it was before the war. That is why the Germans are making so much fuss about their colonies."

France, with a stable population, Doctor True asserted, faced by land-hungry Germany possessing a highly developed knowledge of modern agricultural methods, is bound to yield part of her acreage.

"Italy, too, is faced with the need for more farming land," he added.
"That is what is the trouble with Mussolini."

"Japan also is up against food difficulty. Birth control does not operate in Japan and her population is picking up. What can the Japanese do but hunt unoccupied lands or starve?"

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of public schools in Washington, is the president of the new national commission on economy and efficiency of the business administration of school systems in this country, recently appointed by joint action of Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the Interior. Waste elimination and increased efficiency in expenditure of money for public school education will be the aim of this new commission.

Mayfair Makes Attics, Stables Into Homes

London.—Many of London's aristocracy are busy converting disused stables and attics in Mayfair into stylish mansionettes for their own use and the duke and duchess of York indirectly are responsible.

Since these members of the king's family settled in Mayfair there has been a stampede of those who wish to live near enough to back in the royal stables. Mayfair has, of course, long been the home of the elite. It is in London what Park avenue and Fifth avenue are to New York.

In the old days there were many mews filled with small buildings in which the blooded horses and the fine barriages of the aristocracy were housed. Since the automobile has come into such common use, however, the gloster steeds and the gorgeously unformed lackies have largely joined the other picturesque relics of the by-day of blue blood. Now there are few mews in Mayfair these days which do not house distinguished families.

Post-Graduate Courses for Cooks and Waiters

London.—To keep up with the times, English cafe makers and cooks are going to school again to learn the fine points of their jobs.

Several technical schools for cooks and waiters have been started by the London county council, with the backing of all the larger hotels and restaurants.

British cooks only are admitted, and one of the aims of the enterprise is to improve the art of waiting so that foreigners will not be able to take to the English cities and points of the first class positions because of their clumsiness and polite manners.

Odd Banknote Collection

Historic banknotes to the number of 25,000 have been collected by a London business man. They include notes issued in 1790, 1800, 1810, 1820 and a whole series of forged bank-notes of various denominations.

Paper Blockades

When a country declares a blockade which it cannot enforce it is called a paper blockade, because it exists only on paper. Perhaps the most famous paper blockade in history was that declared by Napoleon in 1807. The French emperor declared a blockade against the British although he was not able to send a single war vessel to sea to support the blockade.—Paul Rinder Magazine.

WHO SAID

"Soul is the Divinity That Stirs Within Us."

AN ABBREVIATED STORY

WAYS AND MANNERISMS

A REVIEW of the work of Joseph Addison (the author of the quotation above) and his friend and co-worker, Steele, states that "Steele had the more kindly humor and Addison the sharper wit." No better definition of the character of Joseph Addison, the great English essayist, can be had than this. Addison was a man of great ability, a man of keen wit and stinging satire; but, like Pope, he often forfeited the affection of his friends because of his pointed jibes.

Born in 1672, Joseph Addison was one of the leading literary figures of his day. He wrote much and his works have been widely read and translated. Probably his best known efforts were in the form of essays in The Tatler and The Spectator—a London paper that contained literature of the first rank when it numbered on its staff such men as Addison and Steele.

Addison received his education at Oxford college, where he distinguished himself as a scholar. From 1697 to 1711 he held a fellowship there and was highly complimented for his Latin poetry and other contributions to literature. He became intimate with the poet Dryden, and it was through him that some of Addison's first work was published.

Addison secured several men as patrons, as was the custom of the time, and through their effort in his behalf he was provided with funds with which to tour the continent. This he did and while abroad he wrote many essays and narratives of his travels. Later he was made an undersecretary and was finally made viceroys of Ireland and keeper of records. In 1708 he was elected to parliament, and remained a member of that body until his death, June 17, 1719.—Wayne D. McMurray.

GREGORY POLKA, usually so unresponsive to women's charms, was forced to admit that Christine Wanderlust's many irresistible little ways had quite conquered him.

The cunning little way, for instance, in which she smacked her lips before beginning to speak.

And her adorable little way of wrinkling her nose like a rabbit to help her think.

And her appealing little way of saying "dear" for "dear" and "heah" for "here," etc.

And her charming little giggle.

Not to speak of her fascinating little way of blowing back the errant wisp of hair that insisted on straying from her forehead.

So, he married her.

It wasn't long before Gregory Polka discovered maddening little mannerisms about his wife that nearly drove him insane.

The irritating little mannerism, for instance, of smacking her lips before beginning to speak.

And her stupid little mannerism of wrinkling her nose like a rabbit to help her think.

And her affected little mannerism of saying "dear" for "dear" and "heah" for "here," etc.

And her asinine little giggle.

Not to speak of her annoying little mannerism of blowing back the untidy wisp of hair that always disfigured her forehead.

So he divorced her.

I find the great thing in this world is not so much where we stand as in what direction we are moving. You may set it down as a truth which admits of few exceptions, that those who ask your opinion really want your praise.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

AT THIS time when we are asked to use much corn in our menus the following favorite recipe will be welcomed:

Corn Meal Muffins.
Cream together one-half cupful of butter, one-half cupful of sugar, then add two well-beaten eggs. Sift and mix one-half cupful each of white flour and corn meal, one and one-half teaspoonsful of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add the dry ingredients to the first mixture alternately with one cupful of milk. Beat all together well. Pour into hot greased muffin pans, filling them three-fourths full, and bake twenty-five minutes.

Chocolate Macaroons.
Grind two-thirds of a cupful of blanched almonds and grate three squares of chocolate. Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff. Fold into them the grated chocolate and the ground almonds, one-half cupful of sugar and three tablespoonfuls of rice flour. Shape lightly into small balls and place on greased baking sheets. Bake for twenty minutes.

Tapenade.
Cook one tablespoonful of tapenade (the minute kind) in a pint of milk for 15 minutes. Dissolve a tablespoonful of gelatin in one-half cupful of water. Beat the yolk of two eggs, add one-fourth cupful of sugar and add to the tapenade. Combine tapenade and yolk over steamed dried potatoes and one-half of a banana, cut up. When cold stir in one-half cupful of whipped cream.

Among the NOTABLES

HENRY A. DUPONT

THE life story of Henry Algernon Dupont is not only interesting in itself, but because it is so like the lives of every member of his family. Every one fought for freedom and liberty, for France and for America.

First of all, one should know the story of Pierre Samuel Du Pont de Nemours, French political economist and statesman, who died in America. His son, Eleuthere Irenee, had escaped from France in the French Revolution and had settled in Delaware. Having been in the French powder works at Solers, he started a similar plant near Wilmington, which grew so fast that during the War of 1812 it made all the powder for the American army. The Du Ponts served in this war, too, and one, the grandson of Pierre Du Pont, named Samuel Francis, was a brilliant naval officer in the Civil war.

This brings us to Henry Algernon, great grandson of Pierre, who also served in the Civil war. Henry Du Pont was born near Wilmington July 30, 1858, and went to school in Philadelphia, and later attended the University of Pennsylvania. Then he went to West Point, graduating head of his class in the year of 1881. The war was on, then, and young Henry, only twenty-three, saw active service. From lieutenant third class he rose to colonel, and was awarded several medals for gallant services at Cedar Creek, Appomattox and Fishers Hill.

The war over, he went to the agriculture, became president of the Wilmington & Northern railway, and later a United States senator.

Report Ghost Walks

in Scottish Church

The ghost of a church officer, who died years ago, walks at night in Falkirk church, according to the present church officer and the organist. The officer declared that when alone in the church at night he has frequently heard the shuffling of feet and the sound of a piano, both of which were peculiar to his predecessor. The organist asserts that he heard a voice in a weary tone exclaim, "Och, ay."

He hurried to the organ console, shouting, "What's there?" But after putting on all the lights he could detect no one. On another evening, the organist says, his attention was directed to the gallery, where he distinctly observed an old man shuffling with weary gait. Despite a severe search, however, no trace of anyone could be found. When the news of these happenings leaked out, a number of the congregation reported that during the war, when soldiers were accommodated in the church, he observed one night, to be conducted by a covered-luggage Tummy holding grins to his ribs when he went down. All the soldiers were searching frantically in dark corners for someone when they declared they had heard voices about, but could not see.—Birmingham Post.

A milligram in the days before the United States had been made into the fountain of democracy, was holding forth at a meeting on the fallings of man. They were, she said, stupid, phlegmatic, and so on. Finally a chairman asked a question: "May I ask you an question?" he inquired. The woman speaker nodded. "Does your husband share your views?" "Not yet," "Ah," said the interrogator, "I thought so." "I may add," said the woman sweetly, "that I'm not married."

Parfumery Used for Ages

All civilized people have used perfume in one way or another, though one of the first was used in the funeral rites. In ancient days perfume was much more used than now and there were many ceremonies that were served in nature that called for the use of it.

Horrible Methods of

Treating the Insane

Until within the last century insane people were treated with terrible cruelty in nearly all "civilized" countries, and as late as 1779 lunatics were exhibited at public fairs in England, and as late as 1818 there were instances of terrible cruelty in the treatment of the insane in England, and he led to gradual improvements and the introduction of enlightened and scientific methods in the care of the mentally afflicted.

One of the mildest of the old forms of treatment of mad people, and long in vogue at Stroudham, in Berkshire, England, was connected with the observance of the festival of St. Vitus, a Scottish saint.

Insane people were draped in the holy garb, where St. Vitus had died in the fourth century. Many cruel ceremonies were connected with this "dressing." After the inspection the lunatics were herded to St. Vitus's chapel, and, strapped to the floor, to be left all night.

Those who managed to free their eyes and escape were considered cured. Superstition did not keep out the power of hell, however, and the method gradually declined.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 8.—Industrial stocks moved down to lower price levels today in a dull and featureless market. Professionals therefore arrayed themselves with the bears, selling the high-priced industrial at concessions of 2 to 4 points from Saturday's close.

The outstanding event in the financial markets today was the offering of $500,000,000 of 3½ per cent 30-year United States government bonds at 100½. The inference of the low coupon rate is a confident belief in an easier money rate by the government's treasury officials. Call loan rates were marked down to 4 per cent for the first time in about two weeks. Industrial earnings reports continued favorable, and French exchange held steady following Saturday's abrupt decline.

Stock sales in the first three hours aggregated only 900,000 shares, against 1,430,000 in the same period on Friday and 2,000,000 shares in the downpour of selling last Wednesday.

The railroad shares again lapsed into inactivity, the high-priced industrial sold down two to six points, and the oil displayed conspicuous weakness following announcement of the decline of 25 and 35 cents a barrel in Pennsylvania crude oil.

North American Company lost three points at 52 and stocks of the power companies were slightly reactionary.

The bears had little success in drives exerted successively against United States Steel and other high-priced dividend industrial. Foundation Company lost about six points in the fourth period and East Iron Pipe was down seven. Motor stocks also held steady in the face of heavy selling in this period.

Some Little Known Facts About Sleep
The harder a man works the less sleep he requires; strong coffee does not help to keep people awake; sad anyone who goes without sleep for three nights in succession will feel more tired on the second night than on the third.

These startling statements have all been proved true by psychologists. The investigators believe that the human race sleeps too much. During a recent test nine people of each sex went without sleep for eight hours. At the end of that time it was found that eight to ten hours' sleep was sufficient to restore them to normal.

Exercise and moderate eating helped the subjects of the experiment to keep awake. They swam, ran, drove motor-cars, and played games. After forty-five hours of wakefulness it was found very difficult to drive a motor-car, but on the third night drowsiness almost completely disappeared, and driving became comparatively easy.

Although physical strength declines as the result of any serious loss of sleep, mental alertness is in no way dulled.

Ozone Produced by Seaweed in Decaying
The name ozone simply means "a smell," since long ago it was noted that oxygen through which an electric spark had passed gave off a peculiar smell, the scent which we perceive at electricity works or in some of the tube railways, where artificially produced ozone is employed to purify the air. In nature, ozone is found often in the atmosphere after a thunderstorm, or in very tiny quantities on mountains or at the seaside, or even in the country. Town air, laden with impurities, is impossible for it. So that there really is a certain amount of ozone present near the sea. It is not this, however, that the visitor smells—the proportion being far too small for notice—but the gas given off by decaying seaweed, the very pronounced odor from the latter being almost invariably put down as due to "ozone."

Mammoth Water Tank
Nairobi, in East Africa, has the distinction of possessing the largest municipal steel water tank in the world. It holds a million gallons and was erected by the Nairobi corporation to prevent the nightly waste of 200,000 gallons of water, owing to lack of storage facilities.

The Nairobi tank is mosquito proof, is erected with manholes to facilitate cleaning, is painted inside with a special paint to prevent corrosion, and is halved by a partition to enable one portion of the tank to be used while the other is being cleaned out, which will be necessary at least every five years.

The height of the water to be stored is 42 feet, over an area of 10,000 square feet.

English Common Law
The name "common law" is a term to the common law, that is, the law of England, in contradistinction to the written or statute law. It is a collection of maxims of English law and legal decisions, which have given the form of law, and which are now and then modified by statute. It is a term used to distinguish the law of England from the law of the United States, which is based on the law of England—English.

Playing Cards Known Since Earliest Age.
Doctor Le Cour, during in Carthage ruins, says the ancients had a play similar to our card game. They used small tablets on which were painted figures. There is also mention in one of St. Augustine's works of cards that are used for gambling. Still the playing cards we now use were invented in the fourteenth century by a French painter named Jacques Gringonneur. It is said that he invented them to amuse the mad King Charles VI of France. The kings were David, Alexander, Caesar and Charles; the queens were Armine, Esther, Judith and Pallas; the four knights, now called knaves and vulgarly "clowns," were Ogier the Dane, Lancelot, Sir Hire and Hector de Garland. Knights of old romance. The card-makers company was incorporated in 1629 and as early as the reign of James I. cards were used. Probably the first game played in England was called "tomb." All the most important historical events have been at one time or another depicted on playing cards, and some of the cards are very rare and valuable.—Pierre Van Paessens, in the Atlantic Constitution.

Worms in Soil
The best treatment for the worms in the soil, which are not likely to be doing any harm, is watering several times with lime water, as recommended recently. Different kinds of worms are found in soil in which there is decaying vegetable matter, but they are harmless. Coward oil is not likely to do your plants any good, and we should not advise using it.—Montreal Family Herald.

Italy Guards Antiques
In Italy one of the most serious crimes is the stealing or unauthorized alteration of antiquities. The government claims as its property all objects of artistic or archaeological interest over 100 years old, and permits for their exportation are obtained only rarely and with difficulty.
Rights to excavate or even to study while excavations are proceeding are rarely granted to foreign students. The other day some archeological diggers who returned home with a sack of bones and a few fragments of old tombs, were being arrested near the beach. They were arrested in court. The bones were sent to seven years in prison—a punishment rare in Italy for any crime less than murder.

Live on Camels
The Tuaregs, found over a large area in northern Africa, are nomads who live principally by means of, and on camels. Tuareg women are as the women in Britain. They are about as well as the men are always called. The women choose their own husbands and teach the children to read and write. They can own property, even after marriage, and their husbands have no control over their sale and authority are inherited through the mothers.

Back to the Cave
So thickly are the skeletons and bones of the cave men found in the many of the 400,000 years ago to present-day man, that it is not surprising that through the study of the cave men, we can learn much about the early days of our race.

When a man speaks about becoming a caveman, he is probably referring to the cat of dog.

EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN BEGINS AT BAPTIST CHURCH.

In spite of the stormy weather, a goodly number attended the service at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church last evening. The pastor the Rev. Arthur S. Cole, gave an appropriate message on "Seeking the Lord," and the ordinance of baptism was administered. It was stated that the object of this campaign was to bring the gospel message and invitation to every person for whose salvation the church was responsible. A list has been prepared of between two and three hundred persons who are connected with the families of the church, congregation and Bible school, but who are not members of the church. The plan is to send a large number of workers to visit these people in their homes in a spirit of friendliness and good will, and try to win them for Christ and the church. The program includes inspirational services on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings to which all are invited and visitation on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The Rev. Ralph E. Stewart, of Atlanta, N. Y., will assist in the services. He is a fine gospel singer and an expert musical conductor, having conducted the music at a number of great conventions. Mr. Stewart will be present at the service this evening, and will have charge of the meeting for boys and girls tomorrow (Tuesday) afternoon service. Mr. Stewart has an attractive personality and does not allow a dull moment in any meeting of which he has charge. The young people and all singers are asked to sit together at the front to act as a chorus choir in leading the singing. Bright gospel hymns will be sung, and every effort will be used to make these meetings attractive and inspiring.

An event of much interest to the members of the Order of the Knights of Columbus residing in Kingston, Saugerties and other nearby places is the announcement of the coming exemplification of the Fourth Degree, which will be held in Albany on May 9 next. The announcement of the conferring of the degree always attracts widespread attention, due to the fact that it is conferred seldom, and it will no doubt be the means of many members of the order journeying to the Capital City on that day to witness this ceremonial. It is expected that several of the Kingston and state officers will be on hand to welcome the visiting Sir Knights, and judging from present indications it is expected that the class will be one of the largest which has ever advanced. The work will be in charge of James J. Nolan of Albany, master of the Third New York district, who it is expected will within a few days announce the committees having charge of the arrangements of the most important event in the Knights of Columbus circles.

The Past Noble Grand of the Colonial Rebekah Lodge will meet at the home of Mrs. Ada Flanagan, 25 Second avenue, Tuesday afternoon.

Lurie had parked his car on Abel street near Broadway and 8 o'clock Sunday evening he found the car gone and notified the police department. Sergeant Charles Phinney sent out a general alarm.

Officer Fatum in the police car picked up the trail of the missing car and chased it as far as Edenville and from there to Rifton and near Perrine's Bridge he recovered the car and Gillespie and Sauer. The car had been ditched twice and was considerably damaged.

Officer Fatum was accompanied on the trip after the missing car by Jacob Schmitt of Wilbur who while driving through Edenville was asked by Gillespie and Sauer to help them push the car, which was ditched, back on the road. He did so. When he learned the police were searching for a stolen car he reported the matter and described the machine which tallied with the stolen car.

Edwards Now Football "Czar"

New York, March 8.—William H. (Big Bill) Edwards, former collector of internal revenue, it was made known today, has accepted the post of football "Czar" as head of Harold (Red) Grange's American Professional Football League, at a salary of $25,000 a year.

Edwards, who was a famous Princeton gridiron star, will serve football as Kewaw Mountain Landis guides baseball. William Hayward, former United States District Attorney of New York, will be general counsel for the league.

The organization, it is said, has already allocated franchises for Boston, New York, Newark and Milwaukee, and a dozen other cities have applied for membership. The league, however, will include only ten cities under present plans.

Edwards issued a statement on his acceptance of the post, declaring his ideal of maintaining college standards.

"I have accepted the presidency because I want to help preserve high-class football as it is played at the colleges," he said.

"The league has provided against harm which might come to the undergraduate by making the rule that no college player is eligible until his class has been graduated."

New York records show that the poodle does more biting than any other sort of dog. Often the poodle bites for the reason that a baby cries—in protest against too much pampering and mollycoddling.

—And Now TAX REDUCTIONS ALLOWED

Effective at once, the delivered price of all Chevrolet models is reduced. Chevrolet buyers will be given the benefit of the recent tax reduction though it does not become officially operative until March 29. Thus for the third time since the first of this year Chevrolet emphasizes its supremacy in dollar for dollar value.

—Reduced Prices

Early in January Chevrolet announced sweeping price reductions.

—The Improved Chevrolet

Shortly thereafter the improved Chevrolet was announced at these reduced prices. Instantly it met with such an increase in popularity that it became necessary to break all previous production records for January and February.

—and Now—a Further Saving

Although the reduction in automobile taxes does not become officially effective for some time, the full amount of this reduction is now passed on to Chevrolet buyers. Thus Chevrolet again emphasizes the principle of value on which it has built the greatest success ever attained by any manufacturer of modern gear shift automobiles. Come in! See the improved Chevrolet! One ride will be a revelation.
